Zombie Invasion Instructions

A zombie attack is probably the hardest challenge you will ever face. Zombies (or the “undead” as they prefer to be known) are notoriously difficult to kill because they are not actually alive. Humans turn into zombies from a Zombie virus, which travels “through the bloodstream, from the initial point of entry to the brain”. The virus ceases all bodily functions and mutates the brain into an organ that does not need oxygen. Thus, the essentially deceased person will become the living dead, with an insatiable drive to consume human flesh. A person can only become infected through “direct fluidic contact”, including bites and direct contact with zombie wounds and remains with open wounds on humans. It’s up to you to save humanity from the Zombies. Each Patrol will need to bring one GPS unit and know how to use it in order to use the provided GPS coordinates and safely find each event location. Having your daypack with the necessary survival gear available at all times will be critical. As you go through the events you will collect parts of the “Cure” in the form of encoded instructions. You will also have your patrol’s passport stamped at each event with the points you have earned. Bring those parts of the Cure and your passport to the Survival Area HQ at the end of the day. The points earned at each event by your Patrol will determine how much anti-Zombie gear you get for the final apocalyptic confrontation with the Zombie Horde. Decode the instructions to know when, where, and how to use the anti-Zombie gear.
